For our key note speaker this year, the Colorado Women's Legislative Breakfast is teaming up with the White House Task Force on Middle Class Families. It is the aim of this task force to promote policies that value families at work. These policies are essential to moving people into the middle class and helping those already in the middle class remain there.

Our purpose is to provide a format that brings together state legislators and the community to discuss legislative issues affecting women and their families. Possible topics include: the budget, domestic violence, immigration, K-12 and higher education, foster care and child welfare, unemployment insurance, reproductive health, access to health care, families in poverty, housing, GLBTQI issues, civil rights and workplace issues.

The breakfast is open to the public. Cost is $15.00 by February 12, 2010. Price includes a continental breakfast and informational materials. If you want a scholarship application or more information, call 303-592-3988 or email fwinter@thewhitehouseproject.org. Register online, or download forms at www.CWLB.org and mail check. Event will be held regardless of weather.
